THE HERITAGE AND RESOURCES OF KARNĀTAKA

Karnātaka covers that part of India which is inhabited mainly by the Kannada-speaking people. The state has an area of 1,91,791 sq km and its population was 61,095,297 in 2011. Situated in the west-central part of peninsular India, on the Deccan plateau, Karnātaka has an exquisitely beautiful coastline stretching about 260 kilometres.

The state has vast natural resources and produces gold, limestone, quartz, asbestos and venadium. Mysūru silk and silk products are in much demand all over the world. Besides, Karnātaka has a large area under coffee and pepper.

Distinctive styles of architecture and sculpture associated with the Chālukya, Hoysāla and Vijayanagara periods evolved in the state and Aihole is generally regarded as one of the cradles of temple architecture in the Deccan region, including Gujarāt and Odisha. The tallest monolithic statue is perhaps that of Gomateshwar at Shravanabelagola, which is about 57 feet in height, while the largest dome in the country adorns the Gol Gumbaz at Vijayāpura, with a diameter of more than 120 feet, where it is widest and in the range of wonders of world.

Karnātaka abounds in places of religious and historical importance which are of interest not only to pilgrims and tourists but also the serious scholar. The Government of Karnātaka is keeping up the traditional spirit of Dussehra, which, with its procession, was one of the great attractions of the erstwhile princely state of Mysūru. The Government helps to organize an entertaining Dussehra festival programme for ten days in Mysūru city every year.

Karnātaka has a rich tradition in classical dance, music, painting and the folk arts. Yakshagana, puppetry and Kolatta are a few of the innumerable folk arts of the state.

It has a fine infrastructure which has attracted many leading central industries. Aircraft, motor-cars, railway coaches, sophisticated electrical and electronic equipments, telephones, television sets, watches and clocks are made in the State in Bengalūru, its capital, is one of the important industrial centres and popularly known as Silicon City and also stands as the IT capital of India. Handicraft articles, including those made out of sandalwood, ivory and the famous unique and unparalled arts and crafts such as Bidriware, Himroo artefacts, Banjara apparels enjoy a worldwide market. With its rich traditions, Karnātaka has made a notable contribution to all aspects of Indian culture in the past and the indications are that, it will happily continue to do so.

Vidhāna Soudha in Bengalūru is the largest Legislature cum Secretariat building in the country, designed and executed under the former Chief Minister of Mysūru State, Kengal Hanumanthaiah, between 1951–56. The style is an amalgamation of Dravidian, Rajasthāni, Chola and Carnatic styles of architecture. The ornamental motifs, floral patterns and chisled geometric designs are all distinct and not a single design has been repeated. The structure is entirely built of colour granite stones found in and around the Bengalūru. A team of engineers led by B.R. Manickam, toiled with over 5000 labourers, 1500 sculptors for over 4 years to complete this magnificent structure.
